ROOSEVELT IS TIRED

Wear of His Long Campaign Tour Has Begun to Tell on the Candidate.

ADDRESSES LARGE AUDIENCE HERE

Does Not Reach the City Until 9:15--Crowd Grows Restless.

The excitement is over. Teddy Roosevelt, the terrible, has been here, and has gone again. Gov. Roosevelt last night completed 18,000 miles of his campaign tour. He has talked to more than 500,000 people and has shaken hands with 30,000. When he fought his way out of the crowd at Waterloo, Ia., at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon he rushed into his stateroom, locked the door and went to bed. He is nearly played out. He regards the change of program which will keep him speech-

THEODORE ROOSEVELT, making in Illinois today, instead of permitting him to go to Chicago and rest, as an imposition. He is angry and almost sick. The routine speeches have tired him less than the task of talking to local committeemen and politicians in competition with locomotive whistles, the rattle of the train and all the other noises of campaign travel. His coat is torn from the tugging and jostling of the crowds. His right hand and arm are swollen and sore. His voice is almost gone.

B. F. Knox, J. J. Ingram and Frank Ross, of Chicago, member of the state transportation committee, left town at 2 o'clock yesterday morning to intercept Teddy and his party away out in Iowa, before the Davenport committee got in its work, and convince him that he must make it short on the other side of the river. They met the special train at Waterloo, and had things all fixed up when the Davenport committee made its appearance at Cedar Rapids. Davenport had mapped out a nice little program, including a parade from the court house to the big tent near Schuetzen park, but it was nipped in the bud. While all the marching clubs and carriages containing prominent citizens were lined up near the court house last night, the train quietly stopped in the lower part of town and the whole show was over before the devoted oil carriers knew what had happened. Many of them were denied even a glimpse of the long-looked-for, as he was whirled in a carriage to this side of the river. In Rock Island in spite of the desperate attempt to bring things to a focus at 8 o'clock. It was 9:15 before the tired crowd had the satisfaction of seeing the line of marchers in motion. From 8 o'clock until that time was a period of awful suspense. The committees were all in the dark as to when and from what quarter the invasion was to come, and it kept them jumping to find out. The original plan had been to have the special car run to this side across the Crescent bridge and a reception committee waited on the levee at the foot of Seventeenth street, refusing to believe Mat Hogan, of the D. R. I. & N. W., because he is a democrat, when he told them his road had been chartered to haul that particular consignment. They remained steadfast where they had been sent till a messenger informed them that Teddy had already arrived.

Roosevelt on the Scene. His carriage joined the procession at Fifteenth street and Second avenue and proceeded at once east to the stand on Twenty-fourth street. The Market square review had to be abandoned and those who came from a distance and spent a weary day on the streets sustained by the thought of passing in martial array under the critical eye of Teddy, the soldier, had to be contented with bringing up the rear of the procession.

While the crowd on the streets had been numerous, that which faced the speakers of the evening was something of a disappointment. It consisted mainly of Moline and up-town people, who were contented to gratify their curiosity without going any further, the oil carriers who were drilled to the spot under orders, and sundry near-sighted or dazed folk who couldn't trust their eyes for what they had seen, but wanted an opportunity to take a deliberate stare. And they got it.

When Teddy had attained the front of the stage and moistened his inside with a generous portion of Rock Island filtered, he crushed his souch up into a roll and showed his teeth to the audience. His composure appeared perfect and he never paused in the task of paying respects to those about him but once. When he ran into the open palm of John Jennings, the Cambridge midget, his jaw dropped, but only for an instant. Pictures of McKinley and Yates and a rag sign that were strung across the front of the stage coming into conflict with the governor's view, they were treated with small ceremony and were soon being ground beneath the feet of the crowd.

ROOSEVELT MAKES ADDRESS.

Appeals for Indorsement of Administration at the Falls.

Capt. W. C. Bennett, of Moline, was the controlling works of the occasion, and he announced as the first number a spiel by the Rock Island quartet. That organization, which consists of Prof. Philbrook, Charles Lutz, J. A. Johnson and Kelik Collins, extracted itself from the crowd and delivered itself of "A Howl of Time." As the rendition had made no perceptible opening through which an exit could be comfortably made another number was tried with better results.

Then Teddy himself faced his tormentors, and with hat crumpled up into an imperial sceptre, delivered himself of 20 minutes of ready-made verbosity. He said he made his appeal on two grounds, both of which were non-partisan: First, that of material well being, and second, that of the love of order and liberty. Under the first head he summed up all the favorable side lights on the present administration, going so far as even to intimate that the republican party has arranged some sort of a fusion with Providence. He predicted the direct results if the democrats should win, declaring that the blow that party is aiming at organized capital would be felt by the nation. Under the second head, he took occasion to make a passionate appeal to the public to stand by the administration in its every act, holding that national honor demands it.

As soon as he had uttered the last word he was helped into his overcoat and left for his private car. The next number was by the Cable Glee club, which consists of W. J. Lee, John Alexander, P. M. Brown, and T. M. Biinkensopp. These gentlemen rendered two numbers, responding to an encore, and took a big ostrich feather out of the cap of the local quartet.

Curtis Gidd Talks.

Col. Curtis Gidd, of Massachusetts, who was Gen. Fitzhugh Lee's inspector general, the first man to enter Havana, and possesses a lot of other accomplishments, was introduced as the last speaker, and devoted half an hour to his interpretation of the solution of present complications. He was a boy with Teddy Roosevelt and told his enraptured hearers what a good football player that gentleman was in his promising youth. Following him up to his present full grown condition, the speaker paid him such tributes as would have turned him a rosy red if he had been present. He denounced the free coinage of silver in such unmeasured terms as "curious mania," "crazy lunacy," etc. He held Aguinaldo up in a very bad light, as a rebel with his pockets full of Spanish silver paid him as an inducement to go and lie down. The colonel made his final appeal from the standpoints of advantage and duty. Under the latter head he brought the flag into the family relation and advised every one to stand by it as he does by his mother.

Afternoon's Delogs. Following the address of Judge Yates yesterday afternoon the Svea male quartet rendered a couple of numbers, and Mayor McCooch introduced C. G. Dawes, comptroller of the treasury, who came up from Alledo with Judge Yates in the morning. He made short work of the silver question, evidently realizing that it was a back number, and launched into the question of expansion. Along this line he executed some lively gymnastics in his eagerness to excuse the course of the present administration in carrying on the war in the far east, claiming that no other course could have been adopted.

Maj. Milton J. Forman gave the next number, which he called a "heart-to-heart" talk. Among his many remarkable statements he said that the trust question is not a political one, but an economic one. He accused the democrats of having worked to defeat legislation against trusts in the past, and intimated insincerity in their present platform. There was another song by the Glee club, and M. O. Williamson, of Galzburg, republican candidate for state treasurer, showed himself, after which Congressman Prince made one of his well known half-hour talks. He devoted his time to impressing upon the remainder of the audience all the creditable things the present administration has done and gave way to the Glee club, which closed the afternoon's program.

The three cars bearing Gov. Roosevelt and party lay over night in the Burlington yards, being joined early this morning and the special car of Judge Yates and party which came down from Joliet to travel across the state today. The two parties made up a special train which left over the Burlington for the east at 8:30 this morning. Before leaving, Judge Yates showed himself, and distributed a handful of cigars among the railroad men who were near, and as the train pulled out Teddy made his appearance on the rear platform, with his hat wadded up in his hand, and treated the bunch that had assembled to a melting smile and a Cavalier Bayard bow.

Parade Pickings.

B. F. Knox played close to Teddy all through the piece. It was a cheap affair—one could blow himself with a gun; having a cent. The "fall dinner pails" had the red eye, and consequently appeared light. The imitation rough rider naturally felt sheepish in following the real hero. The ward clubs are sadly in need of drilling. The marchers' feet do not track. The drum major of the Cambridge band carried as much iron as Count Waldereese. A few of the bands that took part deserved to be pinched for disturbing the peace. Marshal Christian F. Gaetjer had great difficulty in keeping out of range of the lime light. The girls in the duck suits really looked sweet. It's too bad they cannot vote the whole ticket. The crowd was no comparison in size to the one that greeted William J. Bryan here four years ago. "I'll bet the county republican campaign fund will look pretty sick tomorrow," said a citizen as the parade was passing.

The banners of some of the Moline factories saying they would vote so many men at the coming election were characteristically republican. If you happen to hear a republican boasting about the big crowd, do not argue with him, for he has not yet recovered from the intoxication of the occasion. Senator J. P. Dolliver was unable to speak at Davenport last night owing to illness. Besides Gov. Roosevelt, Gov. L. M. Shaw and J. N. W. Rumpole, candidate for congress, delivered addresses.

One thing can be said of the Rock Island flambeaux—every time they turn out they give you your money's worth. Now, boys, can your own beloved paper say anything nicer about you? Roosevelt stood up in his carriage as it moved up Second avenue and, holding his hand, bowed and smiled. B. F. Knox was also seen to look pleasant at intervals. The procession was well managed. An old circus man must have had something to do with it, for the clubs were strung out in true circus fashion to make it appear as lengthy as possible. One banner read: "In 1895, 16 jobs to every man; in 1900, 16 men to every job." It might be well for the person who dictated that inscription to confer with the relief committees of the Associated Charities and Lead-a-Hand Circle. According to their reports they are unable to find places for those appealing for assistance in securing employment. People who hurriedly ate supper and got down early and perched themselves on the stairways and in the windows facing Market square, where it was announced Roosevelt would review the parade, were disappointed, for Teddy was crushed by it. It was too late for grandstand work. And lo, and behold, trudging along bravely among the "commoners," attired in a white coat, wearing his ironed-over, smoked-up, battle-scarred campaign hat and carrying a "fall dinner pail" lantern was Postmaster Tom. If there is anyone who thinks he has a right to carry a full dinner bucket these election days and mean it, that one is Postmaster Tom.

DIRT BEGINS TO FLY

Building of the Peoria Extension of the D. R. I. & N. W. Railroad is Commenced.

KENEPIOK OUTFIT HAS ARRIVED

Men, Mules and Shovels--Steel Rails on the Way--Talk of the Track.

Dirt for the Peoria extension of the D. R. I. & N. W. from East Moline was thrown for the first time yesterday.

The outfit of the Kenepiok company was delivered at Carbon Cliff and the work was started at once.

The outfit consists of fifty teams of mules, a steam shovel, a stone crusher and wheel and other scrapers. It has been used during the past summer in the vicinity of Richmond, Va., where the company had a large contract. The outfit was shipped Wednesday of last week and has been all of the time getting to Moline. It came around through Kentucky and then up to Peoria, thence over the Rock Island & Peoria to the three cities.

The first work will be done on what is known as the Argillo company tract about three-quarters of a mile below Carbon Cliff.

N. J. Van Natta has been engaged by the Kenepiok company to attend to the field work for the company. He is to make all of the surveys and cross sections, take levels, and such other work as is necessary in the course of construction. The ground has been staked on the tract above mentioned so that everything is ready to begin at that point.

Balls for East Moline.

It is said in the offices of the D. R. I. & N. W. road that there are 50 cars of steel on the way from Chicago to Davenport, and that the steel is to be used in building the tracks from Moline to East Moline, and thence to Rock River. This shipment of rails is enough to build several miles of road and will be enough to construct the tracks to East Moline and to build the sidetracks that will be required for the accommodation of the business of the new road.

The Illinois railroad and warehouse commission has settled the dispute of the Rock Island and D. R. I. & N. W. roads in regard to the crossing of their tracks just below Carbon Cliff. According to the arrangement, the new road is to build an overhead crossing, the Rock Island to first lower its grade.

Two new freight engines have been received on the Rock Island. They are numbered 1238 and 1239, and have been assigned respectively to M. B. Bennett and John Cunningham, and Tom Robinson and E. Remes.

FEATURES OF CONVENTION

Interesting Topics to Be Discussed at Missionary Meetings.

After the recent events in China, returned missionaries are a center of unusual interest. Miss Anna Steere, of Pekin, and Miss Ella Shaw, of Nanking, were obliged to return home on account of the insurrection. They will speak at the meeting of the north-western branch of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church next week. Mrs. Charles E. Decker and Miss Wilma H. Rouse will also give up-to-date talks on the same country.

India will be just as interesting when Bishop Thoburn tells his marvelous experience there and Mrs. Rockwell Clancy and Miss C. J. Stahl draw word pictures of that ancient land. Neither will one find Africa dull when Miss Larson and Bishop Hartzell unfold the needs and possibilities of that undeveloped continent. Every session, from Tuesday night to Friday noon, will be full of interest.

FEEDS BRAIN WORKERS

A Food Made Especially for Them.

A literary woman, Mrs. J. C. Roberts, 193 Holmes street, Dallas, Tex., has discovered that a properly selected brain food is of great benefit to any brain worker. She says: "My duties as journalist require me to write all day, particularly in the winter, but heretofore, after luncheon, no matter how light I made it, I found myself incapacitated for work for an hour or two, for my brain would not respond to the demand. "I saw an advertisement of Grape-Nuts for brain workers and determined to give it a trial. I am charmed with the result, and am now in perfect health. I use Grape-Nuts for luncheon, and never suffer any inconvenience whatever, returning to my work at once, feeling as bright as when I left it. I know from experience that this preparation is invaluable for brain workers, who are apt to find that the period of time given up to digestion is one of almost total eclipse of mental power. "In this day and age of concentrated effort, it is wise for brain workers to use a food especially adapted for rebuilding the brain and nerve centers. Grape-Nuts food was invented by an expert especially for that purpose. Knowledge of the food elements contained in the grains and how to prepare these elements so as to be quickly absorbed by the body, and used directly to replenish the lost phosphate of potash (which is exhausted by mental work) have brought about the result. "The proof can be had by any brain worker who will take the trouble to use Grape-Nuts for a few days.

Proposals for Painting.

Sealed bids will be received for painting 275 windows, more or less, and two flag masts on the court house building in the city of Rock Island, the said work to be of two coats, of the best material, to be put on in a workmanlike manner. Bids to be left with the county clerk or the committee on public expenditures on or before Tuesday, Oct. 9, at 2 p. m. The committee reserves the right to reject any or all bids. Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 1, 1900.

Came Near Dying.

"For three days and nights I suffered agony untold from an attack of cholera morbus brought on by eating cucumbers," says M. E. Lowther, clerk of the district court, Centerville, Iowa. "I thought I should surely die, and tried a dozen different medicines, but all to no purpose. I sent for a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and three doses relieved me entirely. I went to sleep and did not awake for eight hours. On awakening a few hours ago I felt so gratified that the first work I do on going to the office is to write to the manufacturers of this remedy and offer them my grateful thanks and say, God bless you and the splendid medicine you make." This remedy for sale by all druggists.
